

Invoking the Violet Flame through Sound

Often times, we feel we have overcome a negative aspect of our self, only to see the pattern resurface and work its way back into our experience. This can usually be attributed to cycles that are set into motion upon allowance of a discordant thought form taking hold in our lower bodies. Just because our awareness has risen to a point in which a lower thought form is no longer part of our belief system, does not mean it is completely removed from our experience. Subtle karmic recoils are often at play, tying up a large quotient of our light that could be repurposed for a more illuminated activity. This is where the violet flame comes into play. When your inner knowing exceeds that of the darker aspects of yourself, it is time to invoke the violet flame. One of the most effective forms of invoking the violet flame into your life is through sound and visualization.

The Violet Flame resides in the 7th ray as a combination of blue light representing power, and pink light representing love. It is regarded as the ray of freedom and joy, and its use is most closely overseen by Ascended Master Saint Germaine, a master of the alchemy of the soul. To master the use of the Violet Flame is to the master a very high form of alchemy. Old, discordant thought forms can be viewed as base metals in Spiritual Alchemy. The Violet Flame can be considered the transmuting force that upon confrontation of lower “metals” raises them into the vibration of love and harmony. In a sense it is the spiritual aspirants Philosopher’s Stone. It works by way of resonance, and can dissolve karma in all planes of existence.

Because every physical sound wave has a corresponding spiritual harmonic wave pattern that is formed in accordance to the intention behind the force that put it into play, manipulating the spiritual energy of sound is made doable by simply shifting your intent. When a note on a musical instrument is sounded, it contains an imprint of the intent of the player of that note. If one is thinking about and feeling discordant thoughts, they will be reflected on the higher planes of the sound wave, and as the physical vibration expands throughout the universe, it will be accompanied by a discordant spiritual wave, imprinting its qualities on all that it comes in contact with. Contrarily, if a loving intent is held within ones awareness as the note is sounded, love will accompany the wave as it makes its journey throughout the universe. This means that feeling and thinking about high forms of spiritual light while making noise (which humans do all the time) will actually manifest these higher vibrations in ourselves and our surroundings. Since the spiritual properties of joy, freedom, and transmutation are inherently present in the violet ray, all one has to do to manifest these properties in alliance with the sounds you are making is meditate upon the flame as you perform actions in this reality.

If only thought about, the Violet Flame is powerful, but the intention can be amplified greatly if the emotions are involved. Above all the most powerful intent center is the heart. The current will of the heart can trump that of all past thoughts and feelings, and when the three “Centers of Will”; Heart, Mental, and Emotional, are combined and aligned with the will of love, the rate of ones ascension can increase exponentially. When this is done in tandem with the sounding of the voice or an instrument, the amount of light grounded into this reality is increased, and the qualities of the physical plane become even more harmonious with those of the spiritual plane.

A very effective way to invite the Violet Flame into your live is to first get into a comfortable position and bring your mind to a still point. Then, rest your awareness in your spinal column, with a focus at the third eye. Visualize a blazing violet light entering through your crown chakra, flowing down through your energy centers, until it reaches your root chakra. When the current is fully established, imagine the violet light overflowing out of all of your chakras and expanding to encompass your entire being. Individually go through your physical, mental, astral, and spiritual bodies, and overflow them with the violet light, and feel the flame purifying, and transmuting anything you are ready to let go of. When you feel that you have sufficiently bathed yourself in this harmonious vibration, see and feel a focus of the violet light at your heart center in a radiant, spherical form. When this is established you can either tone, or sound a musical instrument and visualize the violet love from your heart combining with the physical vibration of the instrument, and expanding out as far as you can imagine, transmuting every dark aspect of our life and reality into brilliant spiritual light.

As long as your intention behind the use of the violet flame is driven by the heart, not the ego, you will have access to an infinite amount of this light, only hindered in magnitude by any limiting belief systems you possess (which can be dissolved by this light). If applied persistently throughout your life, profound results can become evident very quickly.
